KUALA LUMPUR, Dec 11 (Bernama) -- Benua Hijau Sdn Bhd has been awarded the Environmental Sustainability Award - Biodiversity and Natural Resources Protection at the ESG PLUS Awards 2025, yesterday.

In a statement today, the company said the recognition reflects its work in responsible land stewardship, wildlife protection programmes, habitat restoration initiatives and sustainable resource management practices.

Winning the Environmental Sustainability Award marks a milestone in its work on ecological protection and sustainable development, it added.

"We are honoured to receive the Environmental Sustainability Award. Protecting our natural heritage is not just a commitment. It is our responsibility to future generations.

"This recognition encourages us to continue expanding our conservation efforts and championing biodiversity protection across Malaysia," Benua Hijau, a Malaysian company committed to environmental sustainability, biodiversity protection and responsible resource management, said.

It further said the company has implemented science-based conservation strategies, community-driven environmental education and collaborative projects with local authorities, non-governmental bodies (NGOs) and universities in preserving biodiversity and protecting natural resources

Its key initiatives include Melaleuca cajuputi (Pokok Gelam) natural habitat restoration in the Setiu Wetlands in Terengganu; reforestation and rehabilitation of degraded forest areas; protection of endangered flora and fauna; sustainable land-use and resource management practices; and community education and environmental awareness programmes.

These efforts align with Malaysia's national biodiversity framework and global sustainability goals, the company added.
